

Warren Moon, Lake Olympia

When Houston Oilers quarterback Warren Moon and his wife Felicia team up with Lake Olympia Development Corp. to give a party showcasing the development, it's a night to remember.

At the recent private event at the Moons' home, guests from the building industry mingled with Oilers head coach Jack Pardee, Rockets head coach Rudy Tomjanovich, Houston city councilman Vince Ryan, Missouri City mayor John Knox, Fort Bend superintendent of schools Raj Chopra and Lake Olympia builders Dudley Porter and Mark and Gary Evans.

The Moons' home, built by Marilyn O'Connor/Don Gill, easily accommodated the guests, who wandered upstairs to the elaborate media room, out by the pool to sample the buffet and join in with the hula and fire dancers, and down the torch-lit path to the lake for moonlight cruises.

— Thora Qaddumi

Two thousand fresh flower leis were flown in from Hawaii for the event and were placed on guests as they departed for moonlight cruises on Lake Olympia's tour boats from the Moons' dock.

Left, ceremonial procession; above, Savea's South Seas Special.

With Felicia and Warren Moon, left, (and exotic birds) are Lake Olympia Development Corp.'s sales and marketing director Susie Mahoney and Andrew Choy, president.